Kristen Love ‘13W (PhD) supports. She also served as director of student services for a local school district. Her extensive career, both locally and in Ohio, has focused on special education, including serving as an adjunct professor at Warner focused on preparing future K-12 school leaders. Her courses in and directs the childhood, early childhood and inclusion programs. Love has served on the Board of Directors for the National Association of Elementary School Principals (NAESP) and the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP). She is an active member of the Warner Alumni Network and a regular guest speaker at Warner events. Love is also an accomplished writer and has published several articles in professional journals. She is a valued member of the Warner community and is highly respected by her peers and students alike. Kristen Love continues to bring her passion for education and her extensive experience to the Warner School, where she is making a significant impact on the lives of future educators.